ARGUMENT	12
I. THIS COURT LACKS SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION OVER EACH OF THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS’ CLAIMS AGAINST NON-DEBTOR GM.	12
A. GM Bears the Burden of Establishing this Court’s Subject Matter Jurisdiction.	12
B. The Sesay Plaintiffs’ Claims Do Not “Relate to” Any Proceeding Before the Court. ..	12
C. The Sesay Plaintiffs’ Claims Do Not “Relate to” Any of the Liabilities that Were the Subject of the Sale Order and Injunction.	21
D. GM’s Shell Game Regarding “Pre-Petition Vehicles and Parts”	23
II. NON-DEBTOR GM’S MOTION SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE APPLICATION OF THE SALE ORDER TO THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS WOULD VIOLATE THEIR DUE PROCESS RIGHTS IN THAT NO NOTICE WAS DIRECTED TO THEM AND THEY IN FACT RECEIVED NO EFFECTIVE NOTICE NOR ANY REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD WITH RESPECT TO THE ENTRY OF THE SALE ORDER AND INJUNCTION, NOR ANY NOTICE PRIOR TO THESE PROCEEDINGS THAT THE SALE ORDER AND INJUNCTION WAS ADDRESSED TO THEM OR TO ANY OF THE CLAIMS THEY ASSERT AGAINST NON-DEBTOR GM.....	29
IV. THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS OBJECT TO THE COURT’S SCHEDULING ORDERS BECAUSE THEY IMPOSE BURDENS ON THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS THAT

CONSTITUTE INDEPENDENT VIOLATIONS OF THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS’ RIGHT TO A REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD BEFORE THEY ARE DEPRIVED OF THEIR CONSTITUTIONALLY BASED INTERESTS IN PURSUING THEIR LAWSUITS IN A TIMELY FASHION..... 36

A. The imposition of a three-day deadline for the submission of “no stay pleadings” requiring presentation of complex legal contentions does not afford a reasonable opportunity to be heard. 36

B. Under the terms of the Scheduling Order, Plaintiffs bear the burden of persuading the Court that Non-Debtor GM is not entitled to a stay of their lawsuits against it..... 37

C. The Scheduling Orders reflect a de facto consolidation that is not provided for in the procedural rules that govern this proceeding and that has been effected without ensuring the procedural safeguards that lawfully consolidated proceedings that are provided for in other fora would entail..... 37

V. THE COURT SHOULD ABSTAIN FROM EXERCISING ANY JURISDICTION IT MAY CONCLUDE IT HAS OVER THIS MATTER..... 39

Preliminary Statement¹

Ishmail Sesay and Joanne Yearwood (collectively “the Sesay Plaintiffs” or “Plaintiffs”) are entitled to pursue without delay their lawsuit² against General Motors LLC (“Non-Debtor GM”).³ They seek redress for Non-Debtor GM’s wrongdoing, for which it is entirely and independently responsible, and for which General Motors Corporation (“Debtor GM”) was never liable and never could have been liable, because each wrongful act and omission alleged by the Sesay Plaintiffs occurred after that entity ceased operations. Plaintiffs’ claims are based on Non-Debtor GM’s misconduct occurring exclusively and explicitly from the period October 19, 2009, to the present, misconduct which had not yet occurred when Debtor GM sold Non-Debtor GM its assets on July 10, 2009. Non-Debtor GM seeks the equitable protection of this Court, not against creditors of Debtor GM trying to collaterally attack the Sale Order, but rather to shield itself from the victims of its continuing wrongdoing. It is not entitled to such protection.

Non-Debtor GM’s Motion to Enforce the Sale Order against the Sesay Plaintiffs should be denied. Non-Debtor GM wronged the Plaintiffs, they allege, and that wrong has nothing to do with any other wrongs that General Motors Corporation (“Debtor GM”) might also have committed against them. No Court has the power to immunize future wrongdoing, and yet that would be the consequence of adopting Non-Debtor GM's interpretation of the Sale Order to reach the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims. Moreover,

² Sesay et al. v. General Motors LLC, 1:14-cv-0618 (JMF); 1:14-md-02543 (JMF) (“the Sesay lawsuit”).

³ Because Plaintiffs believe that the nomenclature purporting to distinguish between a “New GM” and an “Old GM” serves Non-Debtor GM’s illegitimate public relations goals to misrepresent Non-Debtor GM to consumers, investors, governmental officials, and the public as if it had instituted changes in its practices and policies with respect to risk and safety when it has not, Plaintiffs respectfully prefer not to adopt that usage.

- 1) GM has never served the Sesay Plaintiffs with any papers formally required to initiate a proceeding or matter in this Court, and to establish personal jurisdiction over them;⁴
- 2) This Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims, because their claims do not "relate to" any matter properly before the Court;
- 3) Non-Debtor GM's Motion to Enforce⁵ should be denied because, on its face, the Sale Order does not purport to reach the claims that the Sesay Plaintiffs assert;
- 5) Non-Debtor GM's Motion should be denied because it does not establish any of the requisite grounds for preliminary, or permanent relief sought against the Sesay lawsuit;
- 6) Non-Debtor GM's Motion should be denied because application of the Sale Order to the Sesay Plaintiffs would violate their due process rights in that no notice was directed to them and they in fact received no effective notice nor any reasonable opportunity to be heard with respect to its entry, nor any notice prior to these proceedings that the Sale Order and Injunction was addressed to them or to the claims they assert against Non-Debtor GM;⁶
- 7) The Sesay Plaintiffs object to the Court's Scheduling Orders to the extent they have been and will be applied in proceedings between Non-Debtor GM and themselves because the Sesay Plaintiffs had no notice nor any opportunity to be heard before those Orders were entered, and Plaintiffs in distinct controversies to which the Sesay Plaintiffs are not ⁴Plaintiffs were served with "Sixth Supplements" to Schedules 1 and 2 of Non-Debtor GM's Motion to Enforce, as well as this Court's Scheduling Orders, but no complaint with which Non-Debtor might initiate an adversary proceeding, nor any motion to initiate a contested matter were that the appropriate procedure in these circumstances.

Establishing proper service is also integral to determining whether the Court has personal jurisdiction over the defaulting defendant. See In re Kalikow, 602 F.3d 82, 92 (2d Cir. 2010) ("Before a federal court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a [party], the procedural requirement of service . . . must be satisfied." (quoting Dynege Midstream Servs. v. Trammochem, 451 F.3d 89, 94 (2d Cir. 2006)).

⁵ Since the Sesay Plaintiffs believe that proper service of the Motion has not been effected, they do not believe any motion pertaining to them is before the Court, or that this Court has personal jurisdiction over them with respect to New GM's Motion to Enforce the Court's July 2009 Sale Order and Injunctions, In re Motors Liquidation, 1:09-bk-50026, Doc. No. 12620, April 21, 2014) ("Motion to Enforce"). They reserve all rights and waive none by the submission of these objections and requests for relief.

⁶ This is not a contention that the Sesay Plaintiffs were entitled to notice of the Bankruptcy proceedings more generally. To the contrary, they were not creditors of Debtor GM with respect to the claims they now assert against Non-Debtor GM and thus do not claim, as other Plaintiffs in other controversies may, that successor liability or other derivative claims could not be barred because they failed to receive the requisite notice. The Sesay Plaintiffs assert no such claims. Their contention regarding lack of notice rests the ground--independent of the notice that Bankruptcy law may require before the claims of known and unknown creditors can be barred--that basic due process requirements prevent them from being enjoined by an Order of which they received no notice, constructive or otherwise, nor about which they were accorded no reasonable opportunity to be heard, nor of which they were notified prior to their receipt of "Sixth Supplement" papers and subsequent investigation into their genesis.

parties or in privity with any parties did not represent the Sesay Plaintiffs' interests, nor did such "Designated Counsel" or other Plaintiffs' counsel purport to speak for the Sesay Plaintiffs;

- 8) The Sesay Plaintiffs object to the Court's Scheduling Orders because they impose burdens on the Sesay Plaintiffs that constitute independent violations of the Sesay Plaintiffs' right to a reasonable opportunity to be heard before they are deprived of their constitutionally based interests in pursuing their lawsuits in a timely fashion, namely:
 - a) the imposition of a three day deadline for the submission of "no stay pleadings" requiring presentation of complex legal contentions;
 - b) the shifting of the burden of proof to demonstrate jurisdiction and entitlement to preliminary and permanent relief from Non-Debtor GM, which invoked this Court's jurisdiction and seeks such extraordinary equitable relief, to Plaintiffs;
 - c) the de facto treatment of distinct purported contested matters and an adversary proceeding as a single proceeding; and
 - d) the associated restriction of the Sesay Plaintiffs' rights to notice and an opportunity to be heard manifest in the designation of counsel representing "certain" Plaintiffs in distinct controversies as "Designated Counsel" entitled to notices, opportunities to be heard in matters in which it lacks interest, influence over the sequence by which the Court considers the various issues before it, and various courtesies that the Sesay Plaintiffs are denied by virtue of their lack of that or similar designation; and
- 9) Non-Debtor GM's Motion should be denied or deferred in the interests of comity and of avoiding a jurisdictional conflict with another federal court. This Court should decline to exercise jurisdiction it may believe it has over the Sesay lawsuit because the federal Court before which the Sesay lawsuit is pending has indicated that that Plaintiffs may commence prosecuting their claims before that Court despite any stay stipulation they may have entered or this Court may have purported to impose.

BACKGROUND

1. The Sale Order and Injunction

On June 1, 2009 ("the petition date"), Debtor GM and certain of its affiliates filed voluntary petitions for relief. Debtor GM presented a "pre-packaged" transaction in which it sought to move on an expedited basis through the bankruptcy process. Debtor GM emphasized that it required that the Bankruptcy Court suspend the notice requirements that would otherwise apply and approve the sale on an unusually expedited basis.⁷ Debtor GM did not provide notice of the Sale Procedures Motion to the Plaintiffs.⁸ Notice of the application for the Sale Order and injunction were mailed to various identified creditors.⁹ Unknown creditors were to be given publication notice in select newspapers which appear to have been selected to reach the financial community but not Plaintiffs and putative class members in the mid-Atlantic region.¹⁰ The parties' discussion of the notice issues centered on notice to investors and others who might have then had claims against Debtor GM. The form of the notice itself was not designed to be comprehensible, or even noticeable, to a reasonable consumer, even if they happened upon it. Anyone who failed to file a timely objection on the expedited Schedule¹¹ would purportedly be barred from asserting

“at the Sale Hearing or thereafter...any objection to the Motion, to the consummation and performance of the 363 Transaction contemplated by the MPA or a Participation Agreement, if any (including the transfer free and clear of all liens, claims, encumbrances, and interests, including rights or claims based on any successor or transferee liability, of each of the Purchased Assets transferred as part of the 363 Transaction)...”

⁷ In its motion, Debtor GM stated

The gravity of the circumstances cannot be overstated. The need for speed in approving and consummating the 363 Transaction is crucial. The business and assets to be transferred are extremely sensitive and will be subject to major value erosion unless they are quickly sold and transferred to New GM. Any delay will result in significant irretrievable revenue perishability to the detriment of all interests and will exacerbate consumer resistance to readily accept General Motors products. Expediently restoring and maintaining consumer confidence is a prerequisite to the successful transformation and future success of New GM. ... The expedited approval and execution of the 363 Transaction is the foundation of the U.S. Government's objective 'to create the GM of the future...'

¹¹ Sale Procedures Order ¶ 5.

Sale Procedures Order, ¶12 (emphasis added). Following the hearing, on July 5, 2009, the Court entered the Sale Order and Injunction, Doc. No. 2968, that is the subject of Non-Debtor GM's motion to enforce. The Sale closed on July 10, 2009.¹²

Pursuant to the Sale Order, Non-Debtor GM acquired substantially all of Debtor GM's assets but did not assume all of Debtor GM's liabilities. The MSPA and the Sale Order contain specific provisions determining which of the liabilities of Debtor GM that Non-Debtor GM would assume and which of those that Debtor GM would retain. There was some mention of "future claims" of those exposed to asbestos before the Sale Order who might develop injuries afterward,¹³ a cause of action that could not accrue until the injury manifest but arguably a liability originally incurred by Debtor GM if it was liable for the exposure that caused symptoms years later. But the Sale Order did not address future claims that might be asserted against Non-Debtor GM based on its own conduct after the sale, and based on breaches of duties it owed Plaintiffs independent of duties it assumed that were originally owed by Debtor GM.

The Sale Order purports to bar claims against Non-Debtor GM "based on any successor or transferee liability." See Sale Order ¶¶ 10, 46, 48. Likewise, Non-Debtor GM would have no liability for any claim arising "prior to the Closing Date," related to production "prior to the Closing Date," that could have been asserted against Debtor GM "prior to the Closing Date." See Sale Order ¶ 46. The Sale order additionally enjoins the pursuit of any claim asserting "successor or transferee liability” against Non-Debtor GM unless the claim is otherwise assumed. See Sale Order ¶ 8, 47.

S.D.N.Y. 2009) (the "Sale Decision") Doc. No. 2967.

¹³ This Court recognized at the time the Sale Order was entered that it would be "constitutionally suspect" to bar the claims of those on whom "the notice given . . . was not fully effective, since without knowledge of an ailment that had not yet manifested itself, any recipient would be in no position to file a present claim." In re GM Corp., 407 B.R. at 505-07; see also Doc. No. 12727 at 9.

2. GM’s Motion to Enforce the Sale Order and Injunction

On April 21, 2014, GM moved this Court to enforce its July 5, 2009, Sale Order by restraining various parties from suing Non-Debtor GM for claims related to “ignition switch defects” insofar as such claims were based on liability that Debtor GM retained under the Sale Order. It an order directing Plaintiffs to (a) cease and desist from further prosecuting against New GM claims that are barred by the Sale Order and Injunction, (b) dismiss with prejudice those void claims because they were brought by the Plaintiffs in violation of the Sale Order and Injunction, and (c) show cause whether they have any claims against New GM not otherwise already barred by the Sale Order and Injunction.¹⁴

GM’s Motion is exclusively concerned with establishing whether and which liabilities of the Debtor GM it did or did not assume. Under the Sale Order, it argues, “New GM would be insulated from lawsuits by Old GM’s creditors based on Old GM liabilities [New GM] did not assume. The MSPA and Sale Order and Injunction were expressly intended to provide such protections.” Id. at ¶6. Non-Debtor GM contends that it did not assume potential product liability, breach of warranty, negligence, successor liability, or other liabilities that the Debtor GM might have had with respect to vehicles sold before the asset sale to Non-Debtor GM.¹⁵ Non-Debtor GM claims that the “Ignition Switch Actions represent a collateral attack on this Court’s Sale Order and Injunction.” Id. ¶1.

¹⁴ Motion to Enforce, p.5.

¹⁵ Id. at ¶11 (quoting Master Sale and Purchase Agreement (Motors, Doc. No. 2968, July 05, 2009)) (hereafter MSPA).

3. Claims Asserted in the Sesay Plaintiffs' First Amended Complaint

Starting in February 2014, and in piecemeal fashion since, Non-Debtor GM has admitted that Non-Debtor GM employees and lawyers knew about safety-related defects in millions of vehicles, including the vehicle models owned by Plaintiffs, and that Non-Debtor GM did not disclose those defects as it was required to do by law. GM'S CEO, Mary Barra attributed Non-Debtor GM's "failure to disclose critical pieces of information," in her words, to Non-Debtor GM's policies and practices that mandated and rewarded the unreasonable elevation of cost concerns over safety risks.

On August 1, 2014, Ishmail Sesay and Joanne Yearwood filed the Sesay lawsuit in the Southern District of New York, alleging inter alia that Non-Debtor GM breached independent, non-derivative, non-successor, non-transferee duties that Non-Debtor GM owed to them and putative class members to disclose the dangers that use of their GM cars entailed--material information that Non-Debtor GM knew but Plaintiffs had no way of knowing--and that these breaches caused them legally cognizable injuries (hereafter "Non-Sale Order Claims"). The Sesay Plaintiffs alleged several claims under the law of Maryland, the law of the several states, the law of select states, and under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq. They seek to represent a nationwide class and several subclasses of consumers from identified states. They amended their Complaint on August 28, 2014, Sesay et al v. General Motors LLC et al, 14-cv-6018, Doc. No. 14 ("First Amended Complaint").

Ms. Yearwood bought her 2010 Cobalt in December 2009. The only basis that Non-Debtor GM has offered to connect her claims to the Sale Order--which does not purport to protect Non-Debtor GM from its own liability for cars it sold through dealers after the asset sale--is the speculation that her post-petition car may contain parts from Debtor GM that may have been put in her vehicle in the event (never alleged) that she had sought to have the car repaired, and in the further event (never alleged) that the repair proceeded by obtaining after market parts, and in the further event (never alleged) that the after market parts that such repair entailed installing in her car happened to be parts that were originally distributed by Debtor GM, and in the further event that Non-Debtor GM can find anything in the Sale Order and Injunction that could have given anyone reasonable notice that such decree was ever intended to enjoin with such a wide swath on such a flimsy basis.¹⁶

Mr. Sesay, the owner of a pre-petition vehicle, asserts no claim whatsoever in connection with his purchase, whether sounding in warranty, strict product liability, fraud, consumer protection, negligence, or any other claim typically asserted by consumers against manufacturers of allegedly defective or unsafe vehicles. He asserts no claim even arguably addressed in this Court's 2009 Sale Order.

The gravamen of each claim the Sesay Plaintiffs do assert is that, since October 19, 2009, Non-Debtor knew but failed to disclose and actively concealed that their cars, and those of millions of others, are unsafe to drive. The Complaint alleges five causes of action. Each of these causes of action alleges liability only for the acts or omissions of Non-Debtor GM and other defendants committed after October 19, 2009. In their pleading, Plaintiffs explicitly disavow any

¹⁶ This theory is nowhere set forth in New GM's papers. It was provided in response to the Court's query as to the basis for seeking to enforce the Sale Order and Injunction against post-353 Sale purchasers at a May 2, 2014, hearing this Court held, months before the Sesay suit was filed, with respect to GM's attempt to enforce the Sale Order against other lawsuits:

What happened was someone with a new car, which had a good ignition switch, would go in to have their car repaired and there was a possibility that the person who repaired that car, which may have been a GM dealer or may have been someone totally different, they may have actually put in an old ignition switch part. They may have taken a good part out and put a bad part in. And since New GM didn't know whether -- whether that -- which cars that occurred to it announced the recall for some post-sale cars. But the cars that would ever be impacted by this is a very, very small element, but New GM is repairing all of those ignition switches.

claims based on Non-Debtor GM's potential liability under successor, transferee, or derivative theories of liability.¹⁷ The Class Periods for each of the proposed Classes and Subclasses for which the Sesay Plaintiffs seek certification do not begin until October 19, 2009. First Amended Complaint ¶¶ 40-42.

The RICO Claim: Count I is for violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1962 et seq. This count alleges wrongful behavior that has occurred only after Non-Debtor GM purchased Debtor GM's assets. ¶¶ 58-63. It alleges no acts or omissions occurring before October 19, 2009, nor asserts any duties whose origin could possibly have been in the Retained liabilities of Debtor GM under the Sale Order. This Count does not allege and has no connection with any similar racketeering enterprise that the Debtor GM may have engaged in, and that other Plaintiffs in other contested matters might have alleged.

The common law fraud claim: The common-law fraud count alleges that when Non-Debtor GM learned about the safety defects in its vehicles on or after October 19, 2009, it came under a duty to disclose that material information to Plaintiffs and others, and Non-Debtor GM breached that duty, causing legally cognizable harm to Plaintiffs and others, by concealing the dangerousness of the vehicles, information material to the determinations of Plaintiffs and others whether their vehicles were safe to drive, and that this conduct caused both economic harm and

¹⁷ Complaint, ¶ 34:

General Motors LLC is a limited liability corporation. On July 10, 2009, it began conducting the business of designing, manufacturing, constructing, assembling, marketing, warranting, distributing, selling, leasing, and servicing automobiles, including the vehicles of class members, and other motor vehicles and motor vehicle components throughout the United States. Plaintiffs' claims and allegations against GM refer solely to this entity. In this First Amended Complaint, Plaintiffs are not making any claim against General Motors Corporation ("Defunct GM") whatsoever, and Plaintiffs are not making any claim against GM based on its having purchased assets from Defunct GM or based on its having continued the business or succeeded Defunct GM. Plaintiffs disavow any claim based on the design or sale of vehicles by defunct GM, or based on any retained liability of Defunct GM. Plaintiffs seek relief from GM solely for claims that have arisen after October 19, 2009, and solely based on actions and omissions of GM, the Non-Debtor entity that began operations on July 10, 2009 exposure to increased risk of death or injury. The fraud allegations are explicitly limited to actions by the Non-Debtor GM and others after Non-Debtor GM's purchase of the assets in October 2009, to wit, the concealment of the defects. ¶¶ 65-67.

The negligent infliction of economic loss and increased risk claim: Count III alleges that, upon acquiring knowledge of the imminent personal injury risks that GM cars posed after October 19, 2009, and knowing that Plaintiffs and others had no reasonable way of learning the risks unless GM disclosed the risks to them, Non-Debtor GM came under a duty to disclose those risks to the Plaintiffs and to others, and Non-Debtor GM acted unreasonably and in breach of this duty when it actively concealed rather than disclosed the information, causing economic loss and increased risks of death and serious physical injury to the Plaintiffs and others. The claim is asserted on behalf of residents of the group of states where courts have recently recognized duties not to act negligently to violate these interests. ¶¶ 69-76.

The Maryland Consumer Protection Act claim: Count IV alleges that Non-Debtor GM violated the Maryland's Consumer Protection Act ("MDCPA"), Md. Code, Comm. Law § 13-101 et seq., by failing to disclose critical safety defects to the public. Just like the previous counts, the MDCPA count complains only of the acts of Non-Debtor GM and Delphi, occurring after the inception of the Non-Debtor GM. ¶¶ 77-84.

Joint liability, aiding and abetting and civil conspiracy claims: Count V is an omnibus joint and several liability count, asserting claims for civil conspiracy, aiding and abetting, and joint action. It asserts that Defendant Delphi and Defendant Non-Debtor GM, as well as the accountants, lawyers and engineers who participated in the illegal conduct, are jointly liable for each other's acts because they acted jointly to cause Plaintiffs and others harm, or under a theory of civil conspiracy, or because they aided and abetted each other in wrongful conduct. Count V does not purport to hold Non-Debtor GM liable for conduct of the Debtor GM, nor does it allege any acts that may have occurred prior to October 19, 2009. ¶¶ 85-94.

4. The Court's Scheduling Orders

On August 7, 2014, after the Sesay lawsuit was assigned to Judge Furman, Non-Debtor GM listed the action among three others on its Sixth Supplement to Schedule "1" to the Motion to Enforce. It also listed the Sesay lawsuit on Non-Debtor GM's accompanying Sixth Supplement to Schedule "2" of the Motion to Enforce. That Sixth Supplement to Schedule 2 identified the year, make and model of the vehicles owned by the Sesay Plaintiffs, offered a few select quotations from the Sesay Complaint, and characterized the Plaintiffs' claims. Doc. No. 12819.

The same day, Non-Debtor GM then delivered by electronic mail to counsel files containing the Court's May 16, July 8, and July 11, 2014, Scheduling Orders, the Sixth Supplements described above, and a document purporting already to contain the signature of counsel for the Sesay Plaintiffs labeled "Sesay Stay Stipulation Staying Action SD NY."

The Scheduling Orders that Non-Debtor GM sent to counsel were considered and entered before the Sesay plaintiffs had filed their lawsuit and before they were part of any proceeding before the Court. They had no notice of them nor were they accorded an opportunity to be heard before they were deemed subject to them.¹⁸

enter into voluntary stipulations with New GM ... staying all proceedings in their Ignition Switch Action against New GM ... other than the JPML proceedings set forth in paragraph 4 above and, if the Transferee Court so chooses, proceedings in the Transferee Court for the appointment of plaintiff and defendant liaison counsel and the formation of a plaintiffs' steering committee or other committee of plaintiffs' counsel. The Order is without prejudice to the rights of any party to request that this Court stay the Plaintiff(s) from further proceedings before the Transferee Court or for any party to oppose such relief.

The Court noted "the issue whether Plaintiffs may file a consolidated complaint in the transferee court shall be addressed at the July Conference."

ARGUMENT

I. THIS COURT LACKS SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION OVER EACH OF THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS' CLAIMS AGAINST NON-DEBTOR GM.¹⁹

A. GM Bears the Burden of Establishing this Court's Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction. See U.S. Const. art. III, § 2, cl. 1; Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994). The “burden of establishing the contrary rests upon the party asserting jurisdiction.” Id.

B. The Sesay Plaintiffs' Claims Do Not “Relate to” Any Proceeding Before the Court.

The July 11, 2014 Order restricts counsel who may be heard in relation to the disposition of the threshold issues as “Designated Counsel and counsel for New GM, the Groman Plaintiffs, the GUC Trust and the Unitholders are collectively referred to herein as ‘Counsel for the Identified Parties.’” While the May 16 Scheduling Order provided for counsel for other plaintiffs to be heard at the July 2, 2014 hearing, the July 11, 2014 Scheduling Order restricted participation in the proceedings to these “counsel for the identified parties.” On July 8, 2014, the Court granted GM’s Motion to Establish Procedures for Newly Filed Ignition Switch Actions, which similarly required Plaintiffs in actions GM identified either to enter a stay stipulation or file a no stay pleading, but reduced the time period for posing any objection to a stay to three days. It provided that

If a plaintiff in any such Ignition Switch Action fails to either enter into a Stay Stipulation with New GM or file a No Stay Pleading with the Court within three (3) business days of receipt of a Stay Stipulation and Scheduling Order, the terms of the Stay Stipulation shall automatically be binding on such plaintiff.

The stay stipulation restricts plaintiffs who agree to it significantly, even with respect to their representation of Plaintiffs before the Article III Court with supervisory power over this one. The agreement represents that the Stipulation terminates when, and only to the extent that, the Bankruptcy Court grants relief from the stay of this Action as agreed to by this Stipulation... It provides that if a “plaintiff in a different ignition switch action” prevails in a no stay plea, the signatory reserves the right to request the same relief if the same factual and legal predicates are present. It also purports to bind the signatory to the stay through the issuance of the equivalent of a final judgment disposing of all the controversies between GM and various groups of plaintiffs in other matters. After September 1, 2014, signatories may request relief from the Bankruptcy Court, but only “for cause shown.” Finally, the agreement requires the signatory to agree to the false recitation that GM’s counsel and Plaintiffs’ counsel “have jointly negotiated and prepared this Stipulation and are fully satisfied with its terms.” It is a uniform agreement whose form has been adopted by the Court, as far as Plaintiffs are aware, and thus not subject to negotiation over its terms.

28 U.S.C. § 1334 provides for original jurisdiction in the district courts for "all cases under title 11" and "all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11." The technical jurisdiction issue presented is whether the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims against Non-Debtor GM "relate to" any proceeding properly before the Court, in that their claims themselves assuredly do not "arise in" the proceedings that Non-Debtor GM initiated. While jurisdiction to Enforce the Sale Order may uncontroversially be exercised under §105, the broad powers of §105 create no independent jurisdiction. The ancillary jurisdiction courts possess to enforce their own orders "is itself limited by the jurisdictional limits of the order sought to be enforced." In re Fairchild Aircraft Corp., 184 B.R. 910, 916 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1995) (citing Zerand-Bernal Group, Inc. v. Cox; Matter of Mooney Aircraft, Inc., 730 F.2d 367, 374-75 (5th Cir. 1984), vacated on other grounds, 220 B.R. 909 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1998); see In re Quigley Co., Inc., 676 F.3d 45 (2d Cir. 2012).

This Court may have had "arising in" jurisdiction originally to issue the Sale Order in general under the bankruptcy code (although it would not have had jurisdiction in issuing its Order to have enjoined the Sesay Plaintiffs future claims based on post-Sale conduct by the Non-Debtor Purchaser and on independent, non-successor, non-derivative, non-transferee duties the Non-Debtor owed Plaintiffs), and to reserve jurisdiction to interpret and enforce that Order. However, the Bankruptcy Courts are not able, through that power, to "write their own jurisdictional ticket," and thereby, by the retention of exclusive jurisdiction to interpret and enforce their own orders, to bootstrap their reach to matters that have nothing to do with the bankruptcy case.²⁰

It is well-established that a reorganization plan's jurisdiction retention provision cannot expand a bankruptcy court's post-confirmation jurisdiction beyond that provided by statute.²¹ of subject-matter jurisdiction." In re Marcus Hook, 943 F.2d at 266. Under 28 U.S.C. § 157, a bankruptcy court might have jurisdiction over a proceeding but still might not be able to enter final judgments and orders. Id. Non-core "related to" jurisdiction is the broadest of the potential paths to bankruptcy jurisdiction, so we need only determine whether a matter is at least "related to" the bankruptcy.

In re Resorts Int'l, 372 F.3d at 157.

²¹As the Court stated in Binder v. Price Waterhouse & Co., LLP (In re Resorts Int'l, Inc.), 372 F.3d 154, 161 (3rd Cir. 2004),

Retention of jurisdiction provisions will be given effect, assuming there is bankruptcy court jurisdiction. But neither the bankruptcy court nor the parties can write their own jurisdictional ticket. Subject matter jurisdiction "cannot be conferred by consent" of the parties. Coffin v. Malvern Fed. Sav. Bank, 90 F.3d 851, 854 (3d Cir.1996). Where a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over a dispute, the parties cannot create it by agreement even in a plan of reorganization. In re Continental Airlines, Inc., 236 B.R. 318, 323 (Bankr.D.Del.1999), aff'd, 2000 WL 1425751 (D.Del. September 12, 2000), aff'd, 279 F.3d 226 (3rd Cir.2002). Similarly, if a court lacks jurisdiction over a dispute, it cannot create that jurisdiction by simply stating it has jurisdiction in a confirmation or other order.Id.; accord United States Trustee v. Gryphon at the Stone Mansion, 216 B.R. 764, 769 (W.D.Pa.1997) ("A retention of jurisdiction provision within a confirmed plan does not grant a bankruptcy court jurisdiction."), aff'd, 166 F.3d 552 (3d Cir.1999). ...If there is no jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1334 or 28 U.S.C. § 157, retention of jurisdiction provisions in a plan of reorganization or trust agreement are fundamentally irrelevant. But if there is jurisdiction, we will give effect to retention of jurisdiction provisions. Consequently, we will examine whether this dispute falls within the Bankruptcy Court's subject matter jurisdiction.

Aerobic Life Prods. Co. (In re Diagnostic Int'l, Inc.), 257 B.R. 511, 514 (Bankr. D. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee, 456 U.S. 694, 702 (1982) (stating that subject matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon a federal court by consent of the parties).

It is time for Non-Debtor GM to stop hiding behind the protective embrace of this Court. "Since the purpose of reorganization clearly is to rehabilitate the business and start it off on a new and to-be-hoped for more successful career, it should be the objective of courts to cast off as quickly as possible all leading strings which may limit and hamper its activities and throw doubt upon its responsibility. It is not consonant with the purposes of the Act, or feasible as a judicial function, for the courts to assume to supervise a business somewhat indefinitely." In re Indicon, 499 B.R. at 555, quoting North Am. Car Corp. v. Peerless Weighing and Vending Mach. Corp., 143 F.2d 938, 940 (2d Cir. 1944).²²

The final decree confirming Debtor GM's reorganization was entered and Debtor GM's case was closed on April 18, 2013. Particularly in a post-confirmation setting where a bankruptcy court's jurisdictional basis is most tenuous,²³ bankruptcy courts must use caution

²² As Judge Easterbrook put it,

Once the bankruptcy court confirms a plan of reorganization, the debtor may go about its business without further supervision or approval. The firm also is without the protection of the bankruptcy court. It may not come running to the bankruptcy judge every time something unpleasant happens.... Formerly a ward of the court, the debtor is emancipated by the plan of reorganization. A firm that has emerged from bankruptcy is just like any other defendant in a tort case: it must protect its interests in the way provided by the applicable non-bankruptcy law, here by pleading the statute of limitations in the pending cases.

Pettibone Corp. v. Easley (In re MGM Studios), 935 F.2d 120, 122 (7th Cir. 1991).

²³ As the Third Circuit has concluded,

The post-confirmation context of this dispute affects our "related to" inquiry because bankruptcy court jurisdiction "must be confined within appropriate limits and does not extend indefinitely, particularly after the confirmation of a plan and the closing of a case." Donaldson, 104 F.3d at 553.7 After confirmation of a reorganization plan, retention of bankruptcy jurisdiction may be problematic. See Bank of La. v. Craig's Stores of Tex., Inc. (In re Craig's Stores of Tex., Inc.), 266 F.3d 388, 391 (5th Cir.2001); In re Fairfield Cmty's., Inc., 142 F.3d 1093, 1095-96 (8th Cir.1998). This is so because, under traditional Pacor analysis, bankruptcy jurisdiction will not extend to a dispute between non-debtors unless the dispute creates "the logical possibility that the estate will be affected." In re Federal-Mogul Global, Inc., 300 F.3d 368, 380 (3^d Cir.2002) (internal quotations omitted), cert. denied, 537 U.S. 1148, 123 S.Ct. 884, 154 L.Ed.2d 851 (2003). At the most literal level, it is impossible for the bankrupt debtor's estate to be affected by a post-confirmation dispute because the debtor's estate ceases to exist once confirmation has occurred. See In re Fairfield Cmty's., 142 F.3d at 1095 (holding that once a bankrupt debtor's plan has been confirmed the debtor's estate ceases to exist). Unless otherwise provided by the plan or order confirming the plan, "the confirmation of a plan vests all of the property of the estate" in the reorganized debtor. 11 U.S.C. § 1141(b). See also NVF Co. v. New Castle County, 276 B.R. 340, 348 (D.Del.2002) (holding that the confirmation of a plan reverts the estate's property in the reorganized debtor, and accordingly, the bankruptcy estate "no longer existed"), aff'd 61

lest applications for protection by a Non-Debtor seeking relief be abused, as it has in this instance. Just as the jurisdictional “arising in” power originally to issue the Sale Order may not constitutionally have reached claims—like those of the Sesay Plaintiffs--having nothing to do with the Bankruptcy case, the power to interpret and enforce that Order cannot extend the original jurisdictional limits of the Court. “Most courts agree that once confirmation occurs, the bankruptcy court’s jurisdiction shrinks. The Second Circuit has used the ‘close nexus text’ to determine post-confirmation subject matter jurisdiction.” Vanguard Prods. Corp. v. Citrin (In re Indicon), 499 B.R. 395 (D. Conn. 2013); In re Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios Inc., 459 B.R. 550 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2011); Washington Mutl, Inc. v. XL Specialty Ins. Co. (In re Washington Mut., Inc.), 2012 Bankr. LEXIS 4673, *14-*15 (Bank. Del 2012) (citations omitted):

If including a retention of jurisdiction clause in a Plan was sufficient, the limitation on post-confirmation jurisdiction would be easily eliminated. Rather, to have a sufficiently close nexus to retain post-confirmation jurisdiction, the plan must ‘specifically describe an action over which the Court had ‘related to’ jurisdiction pre-confirmation and expressly provide for the retention of such jurisdiction to liquidate that claim for the benefit of the estate’s creditors...’ Such specific language helps ensure that “bankruptcy court jurisdiction would not raise the specter of unending jurisdiction” post-confirmation.

Respectfully, the Court’s approach in Elliott was mistaken—the proper object of jurisdictional analysis is each of the claims that Plaintiffs actually assert, and the proper Fed.Appx. 778 (3d Cir.2003).Although the statutory basis for a bankruptcy court’s jurisdiction does not change after confirmation of a plan of reorganization (i.e., jurisdiction still is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 1334), bankruptcy courts generally recognize that the scope of their jurisdiction narrows after confirmation of a plan. See Penthouse Media Group v. Guccione (In re General Media, Inc.), 335 B.R. 66, 73 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2005) (stating that while section 1334 does not limit a bankruptcy court’s jurisdiction after plan confirmation, “all courts that have addressed the question have ruled that once confirmation occurs, the bankruptcy court’s jurisdiction shrinks”). This reduced scope of jurisdiction follows from the fact that as time passes after confirmation, the universe of matters that relates to a bankruptcy cases necessarily diminishes. See Gray v. Polar Molecular Corp. (In re Polar Molecular Corp.), 195 B.R. 548, 555 (Bankr. D.Mass. 1996) (“Polar Molecular”).

question is whether those claims could have or had any conceivable effect on the liabilities of the Debtor—and not whether this Court had the power to issue and has the power to interpret and enforce the Sale Order without regard for the nature of claims that Plaintiffs assert. In fact, had the Sesay Plaintiffs been notified of and accorded an opportunity to object to the issuance of the Sale Order, and if the Sale Order had even purported to encompass their claims, which it does not, they would have made this same jurisdictional argument as an objection to such hypothetical provisions. Of course, to state the hypothetical is to demonstrate the absurdity of Non-Debtor GM’s contention that the Sale Order enjoined Plaintiffs from asserting these claims. Even with notice, Plaintiffs could not have had standing to object to the Sale Order, as their claims had not accrued under any plausible theory of when claim arise.

Notably, the Court itself expressed doubt about its power to reach the “future claims” of those whose pre-sale exposure to asbestos would ripen into injury post-sale. The relation between the Sale Order and the Sesay claims is even more remote, as the Sesay Plaintiffs, unlike the future asbestos victims whose interests the court found no one before it had standing to assert, id. do not claim that Debtor GM’s conduct and original liability gave rise to any of their claims against Non-Debtor GM. Not only their injury, but also the conduct that gives rise to their claims, occurred well after the Sale. Cf. Lothian Cassidy, LLC v. Lothian Exploration & Dev. II, 487 B.R. 158, 162 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (Marrero, J.) (“Where, as here, the bankruptcy plan in question has already been confirmed, the Bankruptcy Court’s jurisdiction shrinks to cover only matters that have a ‘close nexus’ to the bankruptcy plan and the plan provides for jurisdiction over the dispute.”)

Like most circuits, the Second Circuit has adopted the Third Circuit's Pacor test²⁴ for determining a bankruptcy court's jurisdiction over a lawsuit between third parties to the bankruptcy case. See Travelers Co. v. Bailey, 557 U.S. at 137, 146 (2009). The court of Appeals has repeatedly warned lower Courts to exercise particular care when healthy non-debtors seek to avail themselves of the protective power of the Bankruptcy courts. It has made clear that this Court's "related to" jurisdiction is limited to power over litigants in proceedings only when the outcome of that proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. See Manville II, 517 F.3d at 66; In re Cuyahoga Equip. Corp., 980 F.2d 110, 114 (2d Cir. 1992) ("The test for determining whether litigation has a significant connection with a pending bankruptcy [sufficient to confer bankruptcy jurisdiction] is whether its outcome might have any conceivable effect on the bankrupt estate." (internal quotation marks omitted); In re Quigley Co., Inc., 676 F.3d 45 (2d Cir. 2012) ("'related to' jurisdiction to enjoin a third party dispute exists where the subject of the third party dispute is property of the estate, or the dispute would have an effect on the estate.") (internal quotation marks omitted); See also In re Old Carco LLC, 492 B.R. 392, 405 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("Nevertheless, the law may impose a separate duty to warn on New Chrysler," and there would in such circumstances be no subject matter jurisdiction over third party claims against New Chrysler); In re Dreier, 429 B.R. 112, 133 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) ("While the Bar Order is limited to creditors and parties in interest in the LLP and Dreier cases, these parties may also have direct claims against GSO") (emphasis added); In re Grumman, 445 B.R. 243 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2011) ("§ 362(f) authorizes the Court to absolve the buyer of in personam liability for pre-confirmation claims in a chapter 11 case. The rule does not extend to potential future tort claims of the type now asserted by the Fredericos, and the GM sale order did not grant the buyer this relief.”²⁵

In the particular context of third party claims against non-debtors, like those that the Sesay Plaintiffs assert against Non-Debtor GM, the rule for determining “related to” jurisdiction, and thus the constitutional bounds of this Court’s power, is crystal clear and easy to apply: When the third-party’s claims against a non-debtor rest on independent duties that the non-debtor allegedly owed the third party, rather than derivative, successor, or transferee duties of the debtor, there is no Bankruptcy Court subject matter jurisdiction over the dispute without an affirmative showing of some conceivable impact on the res of the bankrupt. In re Johns-Manville Corp., 517 F.3d 52, 65 (2d Cir. 2008) (“Manville II”), vacated & remanded on other grounds, 129 S. Ct. 2195, 174 L. Ed. 2d 99 (2009), aff’g in part & rev’g in part, 600 F.3d 135, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 5877, 2010 WL 1007832 (2d Cir. Mar. 22, 2010) (“Manville III”); In re Zale Corp., 62 F.3d 746 (5th Cir. 1995); In re Kubly, 818 F.2d 643, 645 (7th Cir. 1987); Geruschat v. Ernst Young LP (In re Seven Fields Dev Corp.), 505 F.3d 237 (2007).

Nor can the good intentions of a bankruptcy court to protect the purchaser of a bankrupt’s assets to help it achieve “global peace” replace the necessity for a prior determination that subject matter jurisdiction, some connection to the bankrupt, be shown when a non-debtor like GM seeks its extraordinary protection:

The district court emphasized the bankruptcy court's declaration that its "repeated use of the term[s] 'arising out of' and 'related to' [was] not gratuitous or superfluous; they were meant to provide . . . global finality for Travelers. But global finality is only as "global" as the bankruptcy court's jurisdiction. A court's ability to provide finality to a third-party is defined by its jurisdiction, not its good intentions.

²⁵ Nothing in Travelers is to the contrary. As the Court stated, whether the Bankruptcy Court had jurisdiction and authority to enter the injunction in 1986 was not properly before the Court of Appeals in 2008 and is not properly before us...Our holding is narrow. We do not resolve whether a bankruptcy court, in 1986 or today, could properly enjoin claims against nondebtor insurers that are not derivative of the debtor’s wrongdoing. Travelers Indem.Co.v. Bailey, 557 U.S. at 148. That issue was resolved definitively on remand in Manville III, 600 F.3d at 148-49. The answer is no.

In re Johns Manville Corp., 517 F.3d at 66 (2d Cir. 2008). To justify the unusual transaction in which Debtor GM sold all of its assets prior to any approval of its reorganization, this Court emphasized in its Sale Order decision how economically important the limits on the assumed liability of the purchaser, the entity that would become Non-Debtor GM, were to the success of the proposed reorganization, and in turn to the Debtor's and the national interest. But even that exigency has its jurisdictional, and constitutional, limits. However crucial this Court might have believed that the limits on the Purchaser's assumed liabilities were to value of the assets to be sold, and hence to the success of the Debtor's reorganization, this Court lacked and lacks power to immunize or privilege future wrongdoing by the purchaser, Non-Debtor GM, no matter how much more attractive such immunity might make the Debtor's assets. By barring Plaintiffs from suing it for relief from the post-conduct harm Non-Debtor has and continues to cause them by its own post-sale conduct that Plaintiffs allege breach independent duties that Non-Debtor GM owes them, duties independent of whatever duties Debtor GM might have also owed them, the Court would be doing just that. There was no jurisdictional basis to reach such claims when the Sale Order was originally issued, and there is no greater jurisdiction now to enjoin Plaintiffs from pursuing such claims.

The power of Bankruptcy Courts to act equitably and do justice has roots in ancient powers of the equity court. But the constitutional and statutory jurisdiction of the Court runs out thankfully at least at the point where, as in the case in bar, the power is called upon, not to extend empathy and care to an ailing person or entity struggling to survive, but rather to put the shield of the Stay at the disposal of a robust multi-national corporation accused of historic acts of corporate misconduct so that it is able to avoid responsibility for its wrongs. Respectfully, this Court has no jurisdiction over their claims and Non-Debtor GM may not utilize the extraordinary Stay power of this Court simply as a tool in its quest to tamp down its potential liability for its wrongdoing, or to delay lawsuit like that of the Sesay Plaintiffs that it has no hope of permanently barring.

C. The Sesay Plaintiffs' Claims Do Not "Relate to" Any of the Liabilities that Were the Subject of the Sale Order and Injunction.

Non-Debtor GM asserts that the Sale Order protects it against any claims that are based on "successor or transferee liability," claims that arose before the "closing date" and claims that existed against Debtor GM at the time of the closing of the sale. See Sale Order ¶¶ 7, 10, 46, 48. The Sale Order does not immunize Non-Debtor GM for any wrongdoing it commits. The claims the Sesay Plaintiffs bring do not fall within the scope of the Sale Order because they neither allege, nor depend, upon successor or transferee liability, they did not arise before the "closing date," and they do not implicate any past liability Debtor GM might have had in any way. The claims they wish to bring only arose when Non-Debtor GM came into being and allegedly began concealing and suppressing material, and potentially fatal, safety defects from them. The identity and origin of the particular vehicles in which those safety defects inhered is not dispositive of whether Non-Debtor GM and Delphi Automotive PLLC illegally concealed the defects from Plaintiffs, the public, and government officials, and then attempted to suppress lawsuits related thereto. It wouldn't matter to Plaintiffs' claims if Non-Debtor GM had bought the assets from a thriving manufacturer rather than an ailing debtor. The Sesay Plaintiffs' claims depend upon no wrongdoing by Debtor GM and could not have existed against Debtor GM because the alleged wrongdoing did not occur until after Debtor GM had ceased to exist – this is true despite the fact that, in this particular case, the Sesay Plaintiffs may have had other claims against Debtor GM.

All liability addressed in the Sale Order was either assumed by Non-Debtor GM or retained by Debtor GM. Non-Debtor GM could not have assumed liability for the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims from Debtor GM, and Debtor GM could not have retained liability for the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims, because Debtor GM never had liability for the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims, nor could it have. For this reason, the Sale Order, by its clear terms, simply does not reach the claims brought by the Sesay Plaintiffs against Non-Debtor GM.

The Sesay Plaintiffs' case is also distinguishable from prior rulings enforcing the July 2009 Sale Order and Injunction. The "Trusky Plaintiffs," for example, alleged that Non-Debtor GM "breached warranty obligations Non-Debtor GM assumed from Debtor GM in the 363 Sale." In re Motors Liquidation Co., 09-50026 REG, 2013 WL 620281 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Feb. 19, 2013). The Sesay Plaintiffs make no allegations dependent upon duties or obligations that Non-Debtor GM could have assumed from Non-Debtor GM at all. The "Castillo Plaintiffs," meanwhile, sought a declaratory judgment that Non-Debtor GM "assumed a settlement agreement between Debtor GM and the Castillo Plaintiffs as part of Non-Debtor GM's purchase." In re Motors Liquidation Co., 09-50026 REG, 2012 WL 1339496 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Apr. 17, 2012). Non-Debtor GM could not have assumed the liabilities at issue in the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims, because they never existed against Debtor GM. Finally, unlike the plaintiffs addressed in the Court's May 17, 2010 Order Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 105(a) Enforcing 363 Sale Order (Motors, Doc. No. 6237), who brought personal injury claims against Non-Debtor GM after accidents that occurred before the closing date, the Sesay Plaintiffs allege only the injury that occurred after Non-Debtor GM had come into existence. Their case is not distinguishable from the Elliott v. GM matter that the Court has already considered. See Doc. No. 12815. The Court misapplied the law in that ruling and mistakenly thought that it had "arising in" jurisdiction over such claims and that it therefore did not need to attend to the tests that the Second Circuit has mandated in order to determine subject matter jurisdiction of the bankruptcy courts over third party claims. In re Motors, Courts have declined to find “related to” jurisdiction where “the asset [in question] had been sold, the bankruptcy estate was not a party to the action, and the defendants were not debtors or creditors.” In re DVI, Inc., 305 B.R. at 417 (discussing New Horizon of N.Y. LLC v. Jacobs, 231 F.3d 143 (4th Cir. 2000)).

D. GM’s Shell Game Regarding “Pre-Petition Vehicles and Parts”

As noted above, Non-Debtor GM’s Motion to Enforce the Sale Order that prompted these proceedings takes great pains to carefully distinguish the liabilities of Debtor GM that it assumed from the liabilities of Debtor GM that it did not assume and that were accordingly retained by Debtor GM. Non-Debtor GM then concludes that, because particular claims were retained by Debtor GM, Plaintiffs asserting any claims that relate to the assets it purchased from Non-Debtor GM must be enjoined.

To state GM’s contention is to demonstrate its inadequacy. The Sale Order and MSPA speak to how the liabilities of Debtor GM associated with the assets it was selling to Non-Debtor GM would be divided between Debtor GM, the seller, and Non-Debtor GM, the purchaser. The Sesay Plaintiffs assert legal claims that Non-Debtor GM contends relate to “pre-petition vehicles and parts” because they refer to Non-Debtor GM’s concealment from the Sesay Plaintiffs and others of material information about the risks presented by driving Mr. Sesay’s 2007 GM car. Non-Debtor GM contends that the fact that the Sesay Plaintiffs assert claims that have anything to do with an asset it bought from Debtor GM means that they must be violating the Sale Order injunction simply by asserting the claims.

The missing analytic step is to examine the claims that the Sesay Plaintiffs do assert, and to determine if any of the claims rest on liabilities that Debtor GM retained. As the above description of the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims demonstrates, the Sesay Plaintiffs have taken care to honor²⁶ Non-Debtor GM's contentions that the Sale Order bars lawsuits against it based on liabilities that Debtor GM retained, by carefully crafting their allegations so that they assert no such claims. Nor, of course, are the Sesay Plaintiffs asserting claims based on liabilities of the Debtor GM that Non-Debtor GM concedes it did assume. The Sesay Plaintiffs' claims have nothing to do with the Sale Order, or with Non-Debtor GM's purported motion to enforce that Order, because each of the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims is based on breaches by Non-Debtor GM of duties it allegedly owed to Plaintiffs and others, none of which have anything to do with the division of Debtor GM's liabilities reflected in the Sale Order.

In its papers to date, GM nowhere demonstrates any connection between the Sesay Plaintiffs' factual allegations and the legal claims they assert, on the one hand, and the particular legal claims that Non-Debtor GM contends it has no liability for by virtue of the Sale Order. From the premise that Non-Debtor GM is protected from lawsuits that are based on Debtor GM's liabilities that it did not assume, Non-Debtor GM leaps to the unwarranted conclusion (which it apparently hedges for ethical reasons) that any claims made against Non-Debtor GM by owners of vehicles sold by (or even containing parts sold by) Debtor GM must be "Retained Liabilities":

To be sure, the causes of action asserted by Plaintiffs in the Ignition Switch Actions are varied, and in some instances, because of imprecise drafting, it is unclear whether there might be a viable cause of action ...being asserted against Non-Debtor GM. What is clear, however, is that the crux of Plaintiffs' claims is a problem in the ignition switch in vehicles and parts sold by the Non-Debtor GM. Claims based on that factual predicate are Retained Liabilities.

GM then identifies the actions it claims violate the Sale Order, in an en masse chart that provides no information about the lawsuits other than that they involve particular GM Models and ²⁶ That is, to observe the boundaries of GM's interpretation of the Sale Order in its Motion to Enforce. Plaintiffs in no way mean to indicate that they agree with GM's interpretation of its liabilities under that document and those proceedings. They do not.

presumably (inferring from the inclusion of the Elliott action) the factual allegations used the words “ignition switch.”

In order to connect that information to possible violations of the Sale Order — a critical step given the extraordinary relief that Non-Debtor GM seeks from third party lawsuits, Non-Debtor GM would need to show not only that the lawsuits mentioning ignition switches involve pre-petition vehicles or parts, but also that the claims being asserted are the claims that it is protected against under the Sale Order. The critical question is not what year vehicles or auto parts were made, but whether the duties that Plaintiffs allege that Non-Debtor GM violated involved retained liabilities of Debtor GM or instead, as Plaintiffs contend, involve independent duties that Non-Debtor GM owed them.

Rather than provide this requisite analysis to connect factual allegations about ignition switches in pre-petition vehicles to the claims that the Sesay Plaintiffs assert (an absurd possibility in that the Sesay lawsuit was initiated months after Non-Debtor GM lodged the Motion that it purports applies to the Sesay lawsuit, although such motion was never served on the Sesay Plaintiffs and does not by its terms address the claims they assert), Non-Debtor GM’s Motion purports to establish its entitlement to extraordinary relief from each “ignition switch action” by means of “sample” allegations it cherry-picked from a small number of pleadings. GM represents to the Court (in a footnote) that “[t]he allegations and claims asserted in the Ignition Switch Actions include Retained Liabilities such as implied warranty claims, successor liability claims, and miscellaneous tort and statutory claims premised in whole or in part on the alleged acts or omissions of New GM.” Non-Debtor GM’s only support for the conclusion is its reference to another chart purportedly containing samples of such allegations from select cases. Presumably, the “Sixth” Supplements that Non-Debtor GM sent the Sesay Plaintiffs are intended to individualize the de facto omnibus motion, but they contain no analysis whatsoever as to what the sentences that Non-Debtor GM sampled have to do with its Motion to Enforce. As noted above, the lack of connection to Plaintiffs' actual claims is particularly egregious with respect to Ms. Yearwood's claims as a post-petition purchaser. Non-Debtor GM's bald speculation about possibilities that some of the same GM models may have had Debtor parts installed has no factual or legal basis.

Whatever its possible merits in relation to other litigants, Non-Debtor GM's argument is plain wrong with respect to the Sesay Plaintiffs. Respectfully, Plaintiffs are entitled to individual rather than bulk consideration before their rights to litigate their claims are restricted or, as in the case of their rights to pursue preliminary relief, extinguished. They also should not be presumed to be in violation of this Court's Orders based on Non-Debtor GM's carefully crafted representations to the Court that, upon scrutiny, avoid explicitly saying anything directly about the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims at all.

To emphasize, Non-Debtor GM is wrong to include the Sesay action within the ambit of its Motion to Enforce because the Sesay Plaintiffs are not complaining that Debtor GM sold them a vehicle with a bad ignition switch and that Non-Debtor GM is liable for that act. They complain that Non-Debtor GM violated its duties to disclose that their vehicles were dangerous to drive, in part because of the ignition switch defect that GM has now publicly conceded that it (or more precisely, its engineers, lawyers, risk managers, and management) concealed from the Plaintiffs, the public, and governmental regulators. Whether the Sesay Plaintiffs will prevail on this theory is not for this Court to determine, but rather the issue to be determined is solely whether such allegations impinge in any way on retained liabilities of Debtor GM. They plainly do not.

Legal duties are owed by persons to other persons; they do not inhere in vehicles or auto parts or other objects in the material world. The fact that Mr. Sesay's legal claims for relief from Non-Debtor GM relate to a "pre-petition" vehicle simply means that Mr. Sesay may have had potential claims against Debtor GM, say for breach of implied warranty, common law misrepresentation, or state consumer protection violations, in addition to those claims they have chosen to assert. But it does not mean that the Sesay Plaintiffs are in fact asserting such claims. They are not.

Mr. Sesay's claims do relate to a "pre-petition" vehicle, but that single fact cannot act as a shorthand to justify neglecting the more extended consideration required to reach the ultimate conclusion that such claims are encompassed by the Sale Order and Injunction and therefore that Plaintiffs and their counsel must necessarily be acting in violation of this Court's authority by asserting such claims. Before such a conclusion can reasonably (or constitutionally) be reached, an analysis is necessary first to determine if their third-party non-debtor claims assert derivative or successor liability on the part of Non-Debtor GM for retained liability of Debtor GM, in which case the claims may well be within the terms of the Sale Order, or if they are based instead on allegations that Non-Debtor GM violated independent duties that Non-Debtor GM owed to the Sesay Plaintiffs, causing them legally cognizable harm, in which case the claims would not be, and constitutionally could not have been, encompassed by the Sale Order and Injunction.²⁷ This analysis, which GM's invocation of "pre-petition" vehicles and auto parts neglects, is also required to determine the constitutional authority of this Court because, as discussed below, Bankruptcy Courts have no subject matter jurisdiction over third party non-debtor claims that allege breaches of duties independently owed by third party non debtors such as Non-Debtor GM. And, as discussed above, the relation to Ms. Yearwood's claims to any possible retained liabilities is based on pure speculation about parts that may or may not be present in her car.

²⁷ Presumably Non-Debtor GM will argue that it owed no such duties, and it may win that argument. But the relevant question before this Court is not whether the claims will withstand legal challenge, that is, whether there is a legal basis for the duties Plaintiffs allege were owed and breached, but more narrowly whether the allegations are essentially of breaches of independent or derivative duties.

The Court of Appeals has admonished the lower courts to conduct this analysis of the Sesay Plaintiffs claims.²⁸

It is ironic that the Sesay Plaintiffs (and their counsel), who have expended great effort to comply with this Court's Sale Order, and accordingly have made every effort to avoid making any claims that could arguably be within the terms of this Court's injunction,²⁹ have nevertheless been treated as presumptive violators of the Order solely and exclusively because they make claims against Non-Debtor GM on behalf of owners of "pre-petition" vehicles and, if Plaintiffs understand, that pre-petition auto parts may exist in post-petition vehicles. Surely neither GM nor the Court interpret the Sale Order to enjoin these third-party non-debtor claims because such parties could have asserted claims in alleged violation of the Sale Order but chose not to. And surely no reasonable interpretation of the Sale Order would read it to immunize Non-Debtor GM from all civil liability for its alleged criminal and reckless endangerment of the public safety and

In re Johns Manville Corp., 517 F.3d 52, 66 (2d Cir. 2008), vacated & remanded on other grounds, 557 U.S. 137 (2009), aff'g in part & rev'g in part, 600 F.3d 135 (2d Cir. 2010) ("Manville III"). The Supreme Court's intervening decision in Travelers v. Bailey did not alter the Second Circuit's statement of applicable law governing subject matter jurisdiction, but merely considered whether an Order that may have been issued without jurisdiction could be collaterally attacked on that basis years later. The Court held that it could not, on equitable mootness grounds.

the lives of Plaintiffs, their families, and millions of other drivers, passengers and bystanders who may come into contact with GM vehicles posing imminent and unreasonable danger of inflicting personal injury and property damage.

Non-Debtor GM has already admitted that Non-Debtor GM decided to conceal rather than to disclose the risks about which the Sesay Plaintiffs complain, as part of an episode of gross corporate misconduct, plaintiffs allege, perpetuated through a criminal enterprise engaged in various acts of racketeering activity systematically designed to conceal and minimize the risks posed by GM vehicles. Plaintiffs claims center around that concealment by Non-Debtor GM. Whether the Sesay Plaintiffs prevail may depend on whether the courts who ultimately hear their claims agree that GM owed them a duty to disclose in these circumstances, and that the alleged concealment breached that duty. But the ultimate legal merits of the Sesay Plaintiffs' allegations have nothing to do with the question here—do the Sesay Plaintiffs' claims rest on duties they allege the Non-Debtor GM owed them, independent of any duties that it may or may not have assumed from the Debtor GM? Because they implicate no successor, transferee, or derivative liability of Non-Debtor GM, the claims asserted in the Sesay lawsuit have nothing whatsoever to do with the Sale Order transaction, and their motion to dismiss should be granted forthwith.

II. NON-DEBTOR GM'S MOTION SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE APPLICATION OF THE SALE ORDER TO THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS WOULD VIOLATE THEIR DUE PROCESS RIGHTS IN THAT NO NOTICE WAS DIRECTED TO THEM AND THEY IN FACT RECEIVED NO EFFECTIVE NOTICE NOR ANY REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD WITH RESPECT TO THE ENTRY OF THE SALE ORDER AND INJUNCTION, NOR ANY NOTICE PRIOR TO THESE PROCEEDINGS THAT THE SALE ORDER AND INJUNCTION WAS ADDRESSED TO THEM OR TO ANY OF THE CLAIMS THEY ASSERT AGAINST NON-DEBTOR GM.

It is not surprising that the Court did not consider, and Debtor GM did not propose, notice to those like the Sesay Plaintiffs whose future claims would be based on misconduct that had not yet occurred, and whose claims would not implicate Debtor GM's retained liability in any way, insofar as the Sale Order does not purport to reach such claims. The lack of notice is nevertheless important in the event that this Court determines that it has jurisdiction to enjoin Plaintiffs from pursuing their claims. The Court's prior decisions indicate that it intends to apply the Sale Order directly to enjoin those whose "No Stay Pleading" it denies.

Because the injunctive measure of a stay would deprive the Sesay Plaintiffs of important interests, indeed interests of constitutional dimension and weight, in being able to pursue civil redress for injuries they have suffered, and continue to suffer, at the hands of Non-Debtor GM, they were entitled to notice of and a reasonable opportunity to contest the entry of the Order upon which such injunctive relief purports to be based. GM has not established such due process prerequisites, nor could it. The record, contained in the filings appearing on this Court's docket, establish the contrary, even before the recent Stipulation that restated the obvious lack of such notice.

Given the lack of notice to the Sesay Plaintiffs, they cannot be barred by the Sale Order and Injunction. See Manville IV, 135 F.3d at 140; DPWN Holdings (USA), Inc. v. United Air Lines, Inc., 871 F. Supp. 2d 143, 155 (E.D.N.Y. 2012); Morgan Olson L.L.C. v. Frederico (In re Grumman Olson Indus., Inc.), 467 B.R. 694, 708 (S.D.N.Y. 2012); Compak Cos. LLC v. Johnson, 415 B.R. 334, 340 n.8 (N.D. Ill. 2009); PolycelStructural Foam, Inc. v. Pool Builders Supply of the Carolinas (In re Polycel Liquidation, Inc.), 2007 WL 77336, at *8-9 (D.N.J. Jan. 9, 2007); Metal Founds. Acquisition, LLC v. Reinert (In re Reinert), 467 B.R. 830, 832 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 2012); Doolittle v. Cnty. of Santa Cruz (In re Metzger), 346 B.R. 806, 819 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2006).

Since they had no claim at the time of the Sale, they could not be barred by the Sale

Notice from asserting a claim, even if their claims do implicate Debtor GM's liability, which they do not. The Bankruptcy Code broadly defines a "claim" as a "right to payment, whether or not such right is reduced to judgment, liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured, unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured, or unsecured." 11 U.S.C. §101(5)(A). While a "claim" encompasses "all legal obligations of the debtor," Chateaugay I, 944 F.2d at 1003, "the definition's reach is not infinite." Pension Benefit Guar. Corp. ("PBGC") v. Oneida Ltd., 562 F.3d 154, 157 (2d Cir. 2009) (citing LTV Steel Co. v. Shalala (In re Chateaugay Corp.) ("Chateaugay II"), 53 F.3d 478, 496-97 (2d Cir. 1995)). Instead, a valid bankruptcy "claim" exists if and only if "the claimant possessed a right to payment" and "that right arose before the filing of the petition." Id. Moreover, a right to payment necessitates that "the relationship between the debtor and the creditor contained all of the elements necessary to give rise to a legal obligation . . . under the relevant non-bankruptcy law" before the sale at issue. Chateaugay II, 53 F.3d at 496-97 (internal quotation marks omitted); accord Chateaugay I, 944 F.2d at 1003-05 (articulating relationship test for analyzing future claims); PBGC, 562 F.3d at 157 ("No matter how broadly the term 'claim' is construed, it cannot extend to a right to payment that does not yet exist under federal law."). In other words, as a matter of federal bankruptcy law, the Second Circuit has made clear that it looks to "the substantive nonbankruptcy law that gives rise to the debtor's obligation" – in this case, applicable federal and state tort law – to determine the existence of a claim under the Code. PBGC, 562 F.3d at 157 (citing Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. of Am. v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 549 U.S. 443, 450 (2007)).

Because the Sesay Plaintiffs did not have any cognizable "claim" under the Bankruptcy Code at the time of the Sale Order – and did not know whether they ever would have one – applying the Sale Order to bar their causes of action against Non-Debtor GM would violate their due process rights.

Due process requires “notice reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections.” Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314 (1950); see Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 333 (1976); Fuentes v. Shevin, supra at 80-81 (1972); Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee v. McGrath, 341 U.S. 123, 170-71 (1951) (Justice Frankfurter concurring); Armstrong v. Manzo, 380 U.S. 545, 552 (1965); Baldwin v. Hale, 68 U.S. (1 Wall.) 223, 233 (1863).

To be effective in the bankruptcy context, notice must not only “‘reasonably ... convey the required information,’ i.e., the nature and purpose of the proceeding,” but also must inform the claimant of “the nature of the charges or claims that will be adjudicated.” DPWN, 871 F. Supp. 2d at 153,155 (citations omitted); see also Johns-Manville Corp. v. Chubb Indemnity Ins. Co. (In re Johns-Manville Corp.), 600 F.3d 135, 158 (2d Cir. 2010) (holding claimant could not be bound by bankruptcy court orders where, even with notice, “it could not have anticipated . . . that its . . . claims . . . would be enjoined”); In re Waterman Steamship Corp., 141 B.R. at 556 (finding notice ineffective if reader would not have known it affected his rights). “At its core, the concern is whether a claimant can be ‘force[d] . . . to be bound by proceedings in which he did not and could not participate.’” Grumman, 467 B.R. at 706 (citation omitted).

Here, there is no question that Sesay Plaintiffs not only did not participate in the Sale Order transaction, but they could not have. The events giving rise to their claims had not yet occurred, nor had they yet suffered injury. Even in a counterfactual world had their claim accrued, the dense notice that was distributed with the Sale Order made no mention of future claims like theirs based on conduct that had not yet occurred, and so the Sesay Plaintiffs were “in no position to file a present claim,” In re GM, 407 B.R. at 507, nor did they have any reason to know that they would one day have any “claim” to bring. See DPWN, 871 F. Supp. 2d at 157-59 (finding due process had not been satisfied where claimant had actual notice of proceeding but not that it could bring a claim).

III. NON-DEBTOR GM’S MOTION DOES NOT ADDRESS, MUCH LESS CARRY, ITS BURDEN OF ESTABLISHING ANY OF THE REQUISITE GROUNDS FOR THE TEMPORARY, PRELIMINARY, OR PERMANENT RELIEF SOUGHT AGAINST THE SESAY LAWSUIT.

A party seeking injunctive relief ordinarily must show: (a) that it will suffer irreparable harm in the absence of an injunction and (b) either (i) a likelihood of success on the merits or (ii) sufficiently serious questions going to the merits to make them a fair ground for litigation and (c) a balance of hardships tipping decidedly in the movant's favor. See, e.g., Polymer Technology Corp. v. Mimran, 37 F.3d 74, 77-78 (2d Cir. 1994); Reuters Ltd. v. United Press Int’l, Inc., 903 F.2d 904, 907 (2d Cir. 1990); Jackson Dairy, Inc. v. H.P. Hood & Sons, Inc., 596 F.2d 70, 72 (1979) (per curiam). A higher standard applies where: (i) an injunction will alter, rather than maintain, the status quo, or (ii) an injunction will provide the movant with substantially all the relief sought and that relief cannot be undone even if the defendant prevails at a trial on the merits.

Non-Debtor GM’s motion does not address these factors in any way. To the extent it may rely on the risk of inconsistent judgments to establish “irreparable harm,” such reliance would be misplaced because the Sesay lawsuit has been consolidated with most other actions against GM and therefore it presents no risk of inconsistent judgments. Plaintiffs, not Non-Debtor GM, are likely to prevail on the merits of this controversy, for the reasons described at length above. Their inability to bring injunctive relief to protect themselves and the public from the dangers Non-Debtor GM refuses to address effectively is a far greater hardship than Non-GM faces from having the Sesay lawsuit proceed before Judge Furman as part of lawfully consolidated proceedings there.

Just as it will not be entitled to permanent relief on its Motion, Non-Debtor GM is not entitled to any preliminary injunction during any interim it takes the Court to resolve the issues raised by the attempt to apply its Motion to Enforce to the Sesay's lawsuit. Because they have presented all the argument they wish to present in opposition to Non-Debtor GM's Motion to Enforce, and there is nothing left to litigate between the parties with respect to the relief that Non-Debtor GM seeks, Plaintiffs request that the Court finalize to the fullest extent of the Court's authority its disposition of Non-Debtor GM's Motion to Enforce as against the Sesay Plaintiffs whichever direction that disposition rests.

IV. THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS OBJECT TO APPLICATION OF THE COURT'S SCHEDULING BECAUSE THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS HAD NO NOTICE NOR ANY OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD BEFORE THOSE ORDERS WERE ENTERED TO THEIR PREJUDICE

For many of the same reasons that the Sale Order may not constitutionally be applied to the Sesay Plaintiffs, nor can the Court's Scheduling Orders. Before their interests in the prompt resolution of their lawsuit against Non-Debtor GM can be restricted or denied, they must have had notice and a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S.at 314 (1950). They received neither, as the Scheduling Orders were agreed to by other parties in other matters that do not concern the Sesay Plaintiffs, some weeks and months before they even initiated their lawsuit.

The Court's reliance on the input of "Designated Counsel" to justify this rump procedure is misplaced as such counsel have conflicting interests—they represent Plaintiffs who do assert claims that implicate retained liabilities in the Sale Order; they therefore have an interest in the "threshold issues" that they and Non-Debtor GM have agreed to "tee up" before any other the issues presented by any of the other lawsuits are to be considered. The Court may not ignore these conflicting interest and treat the designated counsel as if they were the ones “who were speaking for ignition switch action plaintiffs” generally. Tr. Of July 2, 2014, Hearing at 79-80. Designated Counsel may want to prevent the Sesay Plaintiffs and others from even being heard because, at least with respect to that issue, they have determined that they share interests with Non-Debtor GM to oppose the relief that the Sesay Plaintiffs seek. Id. While the Court early on advised them to consult with fellow Plaintiffs’ counsel, no other obligations to act in the common interest were ever placed upon them, and they recognize none.³⁰ Rather than address the manifest conflict that makes it inappropriate to treat Designated Counsel as representing the interests of ignition switch plaintiffs generally, the Court in the past has fostered the conflict by giving Designated Counsel an opportunity, accorded no other Plaintiffs’ counsel, to appear at hearings on matters of which they have no “interest” as that term is defined in 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b), and to speak at the Court’s invitation in a distinct contested matter against the relief that another Plaintiff seeks. See, e.g. Transcript of August 5, 2014 Hearing at 6-7; 35. In fact, the Court poses the issue whether to grant a particular Plaintiffs’ group explicitly in terms of denying one group an opportunity to speak in favor of another group: “The issue before me is the extent to which I should let you argue it instead of people like Mr. Weisfelner who know a little bit more about the case and a little bit more about bankruptcy law.”

The resolution of the “Threshold Issues” in this Court will have absolutely no relevance to any legal or factual claim the Sesay Plaintiffs assert. Because they do not assert claims depending on retained liabilities, it does not matter to them whether such claims might not be barred because those holding such claims did not receive proper notice to make claims, or whether the doctrine of equitable mootness might nevertheless bar their claims, or whether any bar must be lifted because of a fraud on the Court. The decision of Non-Debtor GM and designated counsel with different and conflicting interest that they should nevertheless “wait in line” while the issues they would prefer to assert are considered, cannot bind Plaintiffs.

V. THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS OBJECT TO THE COURT’S SCHEDULING ORDERS BECAUSE THEY IMPOSE BURDENS ON THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS THAT CONSTITUTE INDEPENDENT VIOLATIONS OF THE SESAY PLAINTIFFS’ RIGHT TO A REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD BEFORE THEY ARE DEPRIVED OF THEIR CONSTITUTIONALLY BASED INTERESTS IN PURSUING THEIR LAWSUITS IN A TIMELY FASHION.

A. The imposition of a three-day deadline for the submission of “no stay pleadings” requiring presentation of complex legal contentions does not afford a reasonable opportunity to be heard.

Like counsel for many lawsuits seeking relief for harms caused by GM’s wrongdoing, counsel for Sesay does not practice in bankruptcy, but rather primarily in consumer protection law. The Sesay Plaintiffs are aware that the Court would prefer to be addressed by counsel specializing in bankruptcy law, and that the Court expects counsel to distinguish their case from the over one hundred other ignition switch cases before it, as well as address a plethora of legal authority that the Court insists is relevant. Tr. Of August 5, 2014, Hearing passim. Particularly given the fact that the Court has recognized no ground upon which a “No Stay Pleading” is to be granted, counsel must construct complex constitutional arguments like those contained in this submission, a feat that can hardly be accomplished in three days, some of which might be expected to be spent in locating and retaining specialized counsel for other Plaintiffs who may possess the means to do so. In fact, the three day time period seems more designed to induce counsel lacking in bankruptcy knowledge and presented with a list of “Designated Counsel” who are presented as if they represent the Plaintiffs’ group generally to simply give up, let designated counsel, who profess bankruptcy expertise and demand no assessment, run the show, and hope for the best. Respectfully, that is not the way that due process is supposed to be accorded.

B. Under the terms of the Scheduling Order, Plaintiffs bear the burden of persuading the Court that Non-Debtor GM is not entitled to a stay of their lawsuits against it.

Under the terms of the Scheduling Orders, a stay is presumptive and Plaintiffs must demonstrate what about their case makes it different from the others that are stayed. This results in an impermissible shifting of the burden of proof to demonstrate jurisdiction and entitlement to temporary, preliminary and permanent relief from Non-Debtor GM, which invoked this Court's jurisdiction and seeks such extraordinary equitable relief, to Plaintiffs, who under the Court's Scheduling Orders are required to bear the burden of demonstrating why their claims, which the Court has presumptively treated as subject to the 2009 Sale Order, are not so subject, and to bear the burden of proving that Non-Debtor GM is not entitled to preliminary relief. The Court has ruled that the "[t]he stay [is] already imposed by the injunctive provisions of Paragraphs 8 and 47 of the Sale Order (and that the Court may also impose by preliminary injunction)"

C. The Scheduling Orders reflect a de facto consolidation that is not provided for in the procedural rules that govern this proceeding and that has been effected without ensuring the procedural safeguards that lawfully consolidated proceedings that are provided for in other fora would entail.

Plaintiffs object to these proceedings because GM has not properly initiated any action against them. It has failed to serve either a complaint to initiate an adversary proceeding, FRBP 7001, or a motion to initiate a contested matter, FRBP 9014(b). Non-Debtor GM concedes that it has not served its motion on the Sesay Plaintiffs and states no intention to do so.³¹

³¹ Counsel confirmed this position in correspondence with counsel for Non-Debtor GM.

Plaintiffs believe that, because Non-Debtor GM seeks injunctive relief, the applicable rules mandate that such proceedings be initiated as an adversary proceeding, with all the procedural protections that attend such a proceeding. FRBP 7001(7). Even if Plaintiffs are wrong, however, and the injunctive relief that Non-Debtor GM seeks is properly available to a Non-Debtor and non-party to the Debtor's bankruptcy proceedings by way of the initiation of a contested matter, such a contested matter must be initiated by a motion served in accordance with the Bankruptcy rules. 9014(b). Non-Debtor GM has not served its motion on the Sesay Plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs do not consent to this way of proceeding. But Non-Debtor GM's nonchalance about procedural formalities is a reflection of the due process fiasco that the rump consolidation of matters into a single proceeding has produced.³² Non-Debtor GM has been given free rein to treat diverse Plaintiffs' lawsuits in bulk, wholesale fashion, as if it were itself a debtor-in-possession, rounding up all the creditors for their haircuts. And the Court itself refers to a singular "contested matter" when referring to the matters relating to Non-Debtor GM's Motion to Enforce. The wholesale treatment of Plaintiffs' lawsuits was initiated by Non-Debtor GM's first bulk submission of 46 lawsuits identified in its Motion to Enforce. The Court, with the acquiescence of many Plaintiffs as described above, has treated the Plaintiffs' diverse matters as if they were a single matter, even purporting to incorporate equitable factors from one matter to another, despite the lack of any identity of interest between them.³³ The associated restriction of ³² Under the Bankruptcy rules, such consolidation is available only in proceedings involving the Debtor. FRBP 1015.

³³ See, e.g., Tr. Of August 5, 2014, hearing at 80:

Even if the Sale Order did not apply in the first instance, a preliminary injunction would also be appropriate here, for the reasons discussed at length in Phaneuf, which I will not repeat at comparable length here—other than to say that the prejudice to all of the other litigants, and to the case management concerns I had the Sesay Plaintiffs' rights to notice and an opportunity to be heard manifest in the designation of counsel representing "certain" Plaintiffs in distinct controversies as "Designated Counsel" entitled to notices, opportunities to be heard in matters in which it lacks interest, influence over the sequence by which the Court considers the various issues before it, and various courtesies that the Sesay Plaintiffs are denied by virtue of their lack of that or similar designation.

Such a process denies the Sesay Plaintiffs their rights to be heard without having to defer to others whose interests in being heard have been elevated informally and to the detriment of the Sesay Plaintiffs over their own.

VII. THE COURT SHOULD ABSTAIN FROM EXERCISING ANY JURISDICTION IT MAY CONCLUDE IT HAS OVER THIS MATTER.

Non-Debtor GM's Motion should be denied or deferred in the interests of comity and of avoiding a jurisdictional conflict with another federal court. This Court should decline to exercise jurisdiction it may believe it has over the Sesay lawsuit because the federal Court before which the Sesay lawsuit is pending has indicated that that Plaintiffs may commence prosecuting their claims before that Court despite any stay stipulation they many have entered or this Court may have purported to impose. This Court should abstain from hindering the prosecution of the Sesay lawsuit as it is primarily concerned with claims under State law. See Geruschat v. Ernst Young LLP (In re Seven Fields Dev. Corp.), 505 F.2d 237 (3d Cir. 2007).

CONCLUSION

For all of the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs' motions to dismiss for lack of subject matter and personal jurisdiction should be granted forthwith, if the Court determines that it has jurisdiction it should abstain from exercising such, the Plaintiffs should be relieved from the May with respect to the Phaneuf Plaintiffs, is just as much a matter of concern here. As in Phaneuf, I will not allow the Elliott Plaintiffs to go it alone. The Elliott Plaintiffs' claims can be satisfactorily addressed—and will have to be addressed—as part of the coordinated proceedings otherwise pending before me.

16 and July 8 Scheduling Orders, and other Plaintiffs not a party to their dispute with Non-Debtor GM should not heard, Non-Debtor GM's Motion to Enforce should be denied in its entirety with respect to the Sesay lawsuit, and the Sesay Plaintiffs should be free to prosecute their action against Non-Debtor GM without further hindrance.
